The luxury resort Soneva Fushi is surrounded by lush, tropical vegetation on the island of Kunfunandhoo in the Indian Ocean in an UNESCO Biosphere Reserve. Kunfunandhoo is one of the largest Maldivian Islands with a size of 1.4 km x 400 m. This island of the Baa Atoll can be reached from Malé Airport in 30 minutes by seaplane or by the speedboat from Dharavandhoo in 15 minutes. Soneva Fushi is a barefoot resort framed by white sandy beaches, where you will experience a Robinson Crusoe idyll combined with luxury and all amenities. The architecture of the resort and the 57 private villas with their own pristine beach section is inspired by nature.

Each retreat offers an outdoor bathroom leading to the private garden. The various restaurants prepare a cuisine for gourmets, using only high-quality organic products. Take walks through the unique nature, let yourself be pampered in the Six Senses SPA, practice various water sports or explore the island by bicycle.

A diving center with multilingual PADI instructors is at your disposal, do not miss a visit to the colorful underwater world. In addition, you can be a guest of an open-air cinema or explore the night sky in the observatory, which is equipped with a state-of-the-art telescope. The "Children's Den" offers creative space for the younger guests, special trips tailored to the little ones will sweeten your and their stay. The resort also houses the first glass studio of the Maldives, with a boutique and art gallery, where you can learn the art of glass blowing.
